Department requirements (18 credits minimum)

Honors Psychology sections provide smaller classes, somewhat more advanced readings, and opportunities for independent work. Honors sections are generally available in the following courses: 1010 (Introductory Psychology), 2400 (Developmental Psychology), and 2600 (Psychology of Social Behavior).

- Maintain a cumulative 3.3 GPA overall and a 3.5 cumulative GPA within the psychology major.
- Under the direction of one or more members of the department, conduct library or laboratory research (PSY 4991) and a senior honors paper (PSY 4998).
Note: PSY 4998 requires a grade of “B” or better
- Complete one 4200-level Honors seminar offered through the Honors Program.
- Complete PSY 5020 – Research Methods in Psychology Honors
- One Honors Course or Honors Options course within the Psychology major, taught by a full-time faculty member, cannot be PSY 4991. (3-4 cr.)
- Accumulate at least eighteen total credits in honors-designated course work specifically including PSY 4991, PSY 4998, PSY 5020, one 3 or 4 credit PSY course, and one HON 4200 level seminar. Other honors credit can be obtained from any department.
